Air Routing International Redesigned Website Announcement

New Websites Provide Users a Multimedia Overview of One-Stop Online Flight Support Products, Services and Weather

Houston, TX. October 2009 — Air Routing International (ARI) is proud to announce the launch of the redesigned ARI (www.AirRouting.com) and Flight Manager (www.FlightManager.com) websites.

The new sites now provide visitors a comprehensive overview of ARI provided products and services with streaming videos, compelling animated graphics, aviation news, and aviation calculation tools.

Specialized updates include streaming product videos, European and US Domestic Aviation Weather, text-based site construction and NBAA based aviation news.

“We are very excited to have the opportunity to present the aviation industry with our updated web presentation,” states Tim Maystrik, Air Routing VP of Marketing and Sales. “Today’s flight departments are requesting a single source, technical solution and our site mirrors this offer.”

In addition to full service international flight support, ARI has completed the first round development of self-serve flight support solutions and online tools for flight that will be announced at the 2009 NBAA.
